Every day presents new challenges with potential legal issues, and ED311 is committed to keeping educators informed about the laws that impact day-to-day school administration. Education laws are often lengthy and complex. Given this complexity, ED311 has developed a number of helpful, easy-to-read charts and guides to provide educators with the tools they need to understand Texas and federal school laws. Each of our charts and guides have been updated to reflect the latest changes made during the 2025 Texas legislative session. These tools will help school administrators make legally-defensible decisions at the school level that not only comply with the law but preserve order and public trust in our schools.

BEHAVIOR LEADERSHIP Conference

Mark your calendars for the second year of our new conference focusing on the biggest challenge facing educators today.

Join our growing community of behavior experts and educators working to reshape student behavior systems and discipline. We'll discuss how to best educate the students needing the most help, how to support your staff in doing it, and how to create real change on your campuses. Let's sharpen our focus on what works and make space to include new ideas on behavior and science, brain development, modern culture, technology, trauma, and much more.

JUNE 22 - 23, 2027
HURST, TX (DFW area)

"This has been the best conference I have attended within the 16 years I have been a mental health professional."
Sarah Gipson, Marshall ISD

"I can appreciate all the biological evidence and neuroscience basis of behavior, I think it helps to know there's a deeper level of understanding that can be presented to not just those who work with behavior directly but administrators and teachers."
Jaci Carlson, Temple ISD

"It was a great experience as a SPED teacher. Some sessions were very motivational and some were strategic. A very good mix and blend."
Christina Barber, Marion ISD

THE SCIENCE OF DISCIPLINE

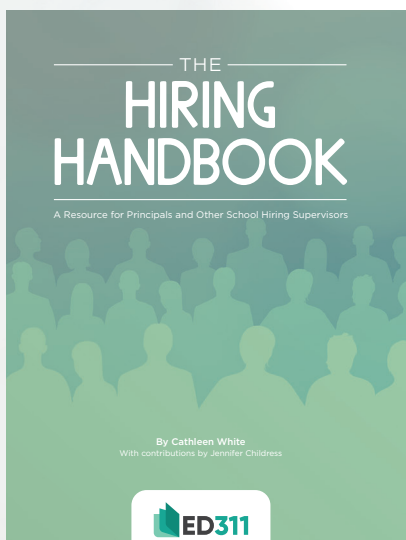

by Nathan Maynard

24-0002 $30.00

BRAND NEW!

Discover 8 trauma-informed strategies to empower you and your teachers, engage your students, and proactively improve student behavior.

The Science of Discipline is a proven and transformative roadmap to tackling some of the biggest behavioral problems faced in school systems today. Nathan Maynard, a global leader in discipline and restorative practices, offers insightful theories and practical strategies to take a more proactive approach to improve student behavior in the classroom with immediate and long-lasting effects. Many behavior modification models are outdated and fear-based, creating more challenges than they solve. Instead, this book walks you through Maynard's signature trauma-informed approach, focusing on belonging, accountability, and logical consequences for students.

THE HIRING HANDBOOK

A Resource for Principals and Other School Hiring Supervisors

by Cathleen White | Contributions from Jennifer Childress

01-0068 $25.00

What's the secret to creating and maintaining a cohesive, high performing team of teachers and staff on campus? Most principals might say training, but before training comes hiring. The art of hiring goes beyond merely filling positions. It requires a strategic and thorough approach to finding the right staff for both the role and the campus culture. Hiring well can minimize training time and ultimately eliminate the very unpleasant and time-consuming task of terminating a staff member.

Chronic Absenteeism:

Strategies for Addressing School Refusal and Avoidance

WITH SHARON BRADLEY

For some students, going to school triggers intense fear and stress, and they become stuck in patterns of distress, avoidance, or maladaptive coping. They need coordinated, compassionate, and strategic interventions. When we understand what drives avoidance and respond with early identification, tiered supports, and strong family-school-community partnerships, attendance improves and students regain confidence and stability.

Behavior Systems

WITH ANGELA REID MATLOCK

Staff training, capacity building, and the consistent implementation of evidence-based practices. Learn practical strategies to support all staff in understanding behavior, implementing interventions with fidelity, and creating classrooms that prevent challenging behaviors before they occur. Topics include teacher and administrator responsibilities, effective implementation of BIPs, addressing students who are frequent office referrals as well as those with significant behavioral needs, and using data to guide decision-making.

Science of Discipline

WITH NATHAN MAYNARD

A proven and transformative roadmap to tackling some of the biggest behavioral problems faced in school systems today. Many behavior modification models are outdated and fear-based, creating more challenges than they solve. Maynard's trauma-informed approach focuses on belonging, accountability, and logical consequences. Insightful theories and practical strategies provide a proactive approach to improve student behavior with immediate and lasting effects.

Effective Documentation of Teachers

WITH TASB HR SERVICES

If it's not written down, it didn't happen. An effective documentation process is crucial for improving employee performance and making informed personnel decisions. This interactive workshop guides participants through the ED311 Texas Documentation Handbook. The training will focus on developing documentation to support appraisal, nonrenewal, and termination decisions.
